- Over 1000 original artworks from 500+ emerging & mid-career artists
- Flash drop - lasts three days only

“Whether you’re looking to freshen up your WFH space, start your own personal art collection, or make a worthwhile investment, our print drops are the perfect place to start”

- Jack Bullen, WCPF Director

Still dreaming of those rolling hills in that delicate lithograph, the bold colours in that vibrant screenprint, or the edgy monotonous of that crisp etching? Woolwich Contemporary is giving you one last opportunity to rediscover your favourite artworks from their recent Fair the monthly Pay Day Print Drop.

On the last Friday of every month, you can find the best in original contemporary prints at truly accessible prices by the most exciting emerging and mid-career artists from around the world. Limited in every sense of the word, these artworks have been rigorously selected by a panel of industry experts, joining select pieces from our leading participating galleries, and are available to buy for just three days.

Each drop celebrates one of the intricate printmaking techniques, and the artists who specialise in them. Galleries include Jealous Gallery, Oliver Projects and Eames Fine Art.

About Woolwich Contemporary Print Fair

Woolwich Contemporary Print Fair is an international art fair showcasing the very best of contemporary print in a unique hybrid exhibition of emerging artists, famous names and specialist galleries. The largest fair of its kind, WCPF is held annually at London's historic Royal Arsenal. Last year's event attracted nearly 10,000 visitors, with many more enjoying the Fair's virtual online offering. Bridging the gap to merge the high end with the accessible, WCPF uses original print as a 'way in' for every person to create or curate their own unique art experience. Edition 7 (03 - 06 November 2022) will feature galleries such as Jealous Gallery, Atelier Rose & Gray, Paupers Press and Julian Page who bring with them big names such as Yinka Shonibare (CBE) RA, Sir Michael Craig Martin, David Shrigley and many more.
